OFFICE BY INHERITANCE

We have nothing against Mrs. Huey Long, widow of the departed dictator of Louisiana politics. Unquestionably she is a very fine woman and may be one of brilliant mental attainments for aught I know. However her personality was submerged while the Kingfish was among the living.

Her appointment to succeed Huey in the United States Senate involves a principle with which I cannot agree—succession by heritage.

The law imposes on the governor of a state the duty of appointing a successor when a Senator dies during his term of office, and the presumption is that he will appoint the person best qualified to represent the State in the august national body. Relationship by marriage to a decedent is not an argument as to fitness. If Mrs. Long is endowed with those attributes which we naturally have the right to expect in connection with the bestowal of such an honor, well and good; if her naming is simply because she is Long's widow, then the precedent established is in contravention of the American theory of government and can only have a harmful effect.

Heavy Rain Is Predicted For Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15—UP—An area of low barometric pressure west of the California coast brought the threat of additional rain tonight to valley, mountain and coastal communities, already suffering heavily from six days of almost incessant rainfall.

RAIN IS MENACE

Additional precipitation at this time would send the great inland rivers of California closer to the flood stage and would spread water over lowland fields and homesites already inundated by depths of inches to two feet.

CREEKS OVERFLOW

Overflowing creeks were spread over areas of Merced, Santa Cruz, Alameda, Sacramento and San Joaquin counties. A Federal transient camp and 50 farm families were cut off from Watsonville by collapse of a bridge over Corralitos Creek, eight miles from the city.

Diversion ditches temporarily drained off water that had crept within two blocks of the business district of Merced and had forced families in the lowlands there to evacuate their homes.

Anonymous Letter Sent Mrs. McCord

MARTINEZ, Feb. 15.—An anonymous letter, postmarked Richmond, was received at the county jail on Friday by Mrs. Ruth McCord, indicted ex-social service director who a week ago tomorrow was returned from Salt Lake City, Utah, by Sheriff John A. Miller as a fugitive from justice.

It addressed her as "pig face" and advised that she need not think she could get away with all the things she had done, but would "get what was coming to her."

The letter was turned over to the postal authorities by Sheriff Miller and an investigation is now in progress.

Mrs. McCord was very much upset by the receipt of the letter. The day of its receipt a physician was called in, Dr. G. L. Coates who examined her and prescribed for a cold and liver trouble from which she was suffering.

TENSION ON BORDER IS INCREASING

TOKYO, Feb. 15.—UP—Japanese-Soviet tension, fed by repeated armed clashes on the Mongolian border, was heightened today by a new large scale engagement north of Lake Buino.

BORDER BATTLE

One thousand Mongolians, the Nippon Demo News Agency said, invaded Manchukuo and battled Japanese - Manchuokuan troops. The Mongolians retreated after protracted fighting and the inference was that they had been driven back.

Officials, however, were without full details or the extent of the casualties. The battle occurred at 9 A. M. today close to the lake, which is on the southwestern border of Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia.

SITUATION SERIOUS

The news proved disconcerting to Japanese officials. Following as it did on last Wednesday's clash at

Woman Struck By Machine And Sustains Injuries

Mrs. Louis Sueyraz, 66, of No. 11 Mancillo avenue was struck and injured last night by an auto driven by Walter W. Carter, 27, of 2212 Sacramento street, San Francisco at the corner of Standard and Contra Costa avenues.

The woman was taken to the Ship Cafe by Carter and from there she was driven to the Cottage Hospital where she was given medical attention by Dr. W. S. Lucas. She complained of her back being hurt and was ordered to remain at the hospital for the night. X-rays will be taken to ascertain if she suffered internal injuries.

Carter was driving east on Standard avenue. Mrs. Sueyraz had just alighted from a bus, headed toward the Standard Oil, and walked to the back of the bus in order to cross Contra Costa avenue from the north to the south side. Stepping into the street she was struck by the left front fender of Carter's car. Carter said several machines were passing and he did not see her in time to avoid the accident.

Pneumonia Fatal To Michael O'Connor

Michael O'Connor, 36, an employe of the Richmond Ford plant, died at an Oakland hospital Friday night of pneumonia.

O'Connor had lived on the west coast for 12 years, having come to Richmond from Long Beach. His home was originally in Philadelphia where a surviving brother lives. Funeral services are pending word from the brother, who is the only living relative.

ATTORNEY THOMAS M. CARLSON, who made a hurried business trip to Los Angeles, will return Monday.

Waterfront Again Scene New Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—UP—Employers and longshoremen of the San Francisco waterfront today renewed their almost constant warfare after a brief lapse with a dispute over the number of trailers the workers should haul in moving cargo.

TROUBLE FORESEEN

Comparatively insignificant in itself, the dispute reflected the troubled labor situation which some observers expect to break out into a strike paralleling that which tied up shipping for three months in 1934 and led to the San Francisco general strike.

The trouble began on the docks of the American-Hawaiian steamship company, where reportedly the company directed the men to haul three trailers instead of two.

Waterfront employers' spokesmen said the men refused to work; spokesmen for the International Longshoremen's Association reported the longshore gangs had been discharged.

PEACE SHATTERED

The outbreak shattered a period of peace that had lasted more than a month so far as the longshoremen were concerned. It broke a period of general quiet along the whole maritime front which followed the decision of sailors to abandon their demands for a six-hour day on the lumber-carrying coastwise steam schooners last week.

Each side delivered press statements to explain its position in the new controversy.

Meadow Lark Shooter Fined

Jack Nicoli, 6015 Center avenue, was found guilty yesterday of shooting meadow larks by Judge C. A. Odell and was fined $25, given a six-month suspended jail sentence and placed on probation for two years.

Nicoli was arrested February 11 by Game Wardens Robert S. Bash and H. M. Worcester of Berkeley. Judge Odell explained that Nicoli may be compelled to serve the jail sentence at any time within two years if his probation is violated in any way.

Last Rites For Mrs. Dora Fallon

Funeral services for Mrs. Doris J. Fallon, 416 Cypress avenue, who died Thursday morning, were held yesterday afternoon at the Ryan Funeral chapel. Interment was in Sunset View cemetery.

Pallbearers were Walter E. Henderson, Otto Graiunde, Arthur Bennson, Donald Gleeson, Grouer Cross and Robert E. Stoker. Honorary pall bearers were J. S. Welch, C. Davidson, H. Merkt, A. Baxter, E. Merchant and H. Skee.

STRONG GALE-LIKE winds, accompanied by thunder, lightning and heavy rains, swept over the Pacific Coast at the height of the recent storm. The cyclonic winds wrecked oil derricks in Long Beach and tore the roofs from several homes.

Officers Get Big Surprise In Brake Test

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 15.—UP—Flay Nelson and L. M. McKinney, traffic officers, ventured forth today with the city's new automobile brake tester in quest of motor cars that couldn't stop properly.

Promptly they espied what they considered a fine example—a battered 1928 coupe. They mounted the running board and directed the motorist to "speed her up to 20 miles an hour."

The motorist complied.

"Stop," the officers shouted in unison.

Again the driver complied. Nelson and McKinney went tumbling head over heels to the pavement. They went to a hospital, the brake tester to a repair shop.

Nursing Project At Peres School

Permission was given the Richmond primary school board yesterday to remodel a building on the Peres school grounds to be used for a nursing course under an Emergency Education Project.

Mrs. Olga Henndl, project director, will be in charge and the class in nursing is open to the public.

Havana Man Mixed Up In Bruno Case

HAVANA, Feb. 15.—UP—A German who is said to have carried a letter from the late Isidor Fisch of the Lindbergh case, asking about disposition of banned American money, has been located here, a detective announced tonight.

Detective Ignacio Calvo said he had located the man who was said by Dr. Arturo Gonzales Alfonso, Havana attorney, to have displayed a letter. Calvo refused to reveal the man's name until Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey receives a detailed report of the investigation which is now in the mails.

"I am convinced the German is the man Gonzales says received the letter," Calvo said. "However, it may be hard to prove."

The man cannot be arrested, the detectives said, because "he has committed no offense."

Mrs. Frances Chabot was hostess to Tahoe Council No. 186 Degree of Pocahontas Friday evening at her home at 103 Bellemont avenue. The evening was spent in playing bridge and dancing after which refreshments were served.

Al Is Not Told Of Murder Of His Henchman

ALCATRAZ ISLAND, San Francisco, Feb. 15. — UP —Al Capone, famed Chicago gang leader, may have to wait at least three years before he learns of the death of Jack McGurn, one of his most feared henchmen in the days of the Capone gangland empire, Alcatraz island federal authorities indicated today.

They themselves will not tell Capone of McGurn's death early today as prison rules forbid it.

So unless Al learns from the prison "grapevine" or from some convict admitted during the next few months, his first knowledge of McGurn's death will come when he completes his term for violation of income tax laws.

Twin Girls Born At Local Hospital

Twin daughters were born February 11 to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zanussi, 714 Edwards street, Crockett, according to the records at the office of the city board of health. The twins were born at Richmond Cottage hospital.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Wolf, 927 Seventh street on February 9.

Victim Of Brutal Assault Dying In The County Hospital

MARTINEZ, Feb. 15.—Adeline F. Knight is in the County hospital with his death expected any moment and three men are in the county jail, where they were rushed by Chief of Police Al LeRoy from Antioch to save them from threats of lynching.

The crime of which they are accused is one of the most brutal in the crime annals of the county.

Knight, an aged recluse, who has made his home on an ark on the waterfront of Antioch for a number of years was the possessor of an automatic pistol and it was this weapon that brought him close to death's door. The three men, it is claimed knew of his possession of the pistol and on Friday night went to his place and demanded that it be turned over to them. Upon his refusal, they allegedly pounced upon the old man and beat him unmercifully, fracturing his skull, breaking his jaw and otherwise beating him almost to a pulp.

The assault was not discovered until 11 o'clock today, Knight having laid in his ark during the intervening period. When found he gave the Antioch officers, in a moment of consciousness, a description of the men, which led to their apprehension.

They were immediately rounded up and lodged in the Antioch city jail, but the threats of lynching became so insistent that Chief of Police LeRoy decided to take no chances and spirited them away to the county jail in Martinez.

Questioned by officers, two of the men, Fallie S. Sutton, 39 and LeRoy A. Bussey, 37, admitted the beating, but the third man, Lewis F. Sly, 38, refused to talk and lapsed into sullen silence, which up to a late hour tonight had not been broken.

The sheriff's office received a tip that it was possible that a mob would attempt to take the men out of the county jail and at midnight precautions were being taken to frustrate any plan of that nature that might develop during the night.

A spinal fluid test was made late tonight and presence of blood in it indicated brain hemorrhages.

The three accused men are said to be laborers. Sly has a record, having been arrested twice in 1932, on one occasion on a charge of disturbing the peace and the other for possession of liquor.

CONTESTS TO BE MADE IN PRIMARIES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—UP—The Borah-For-President organization tonight opened the campaign to win Ohio's 52 Republican national convention delegates from Frank Knox of Chicago.

Carl G. Bachmann, chairman of the national Borah-For-President committee, called a state-wide conference of Ohio friends of the Senator to meet in Akron, Sunday.

TWO TO CONTEST

Both Borah and Knox are to contest the Ohio presidential primary which takes place May 12. Borah has filed his entry and Knox headquarters has applied for the necessary papers.

Knox and Borah are in the Illinois primary contest. Whether they will meet in others of the 14 states

Gordon Perault, Local Business Man Is Dead

Clarence Gordon Perault, 36, well known Richmond business man, died at a local hospital yesterday morning after being ill a week. He suffered an attack of influenza a week ago which later developed into pneumonia.

Perault was engaged in the hardware business until a year ago when he became identified with the insurance business. He was a candidate for city councilman at the last city election. He was formerly employed by the Standard Oil company.

He was a member of the Masonic and Sciot organizations.

Surviving are the widow, Thankful Perault and a son Gordon Scott Perault of this city; his mother, Murella Bennison of San Francisco; a father, Walter Scott Bennison of San Francisco; two sisters, Mrs. George A. Ellis of Richmond and Mrs. W. W. Armstrong of San Francisco.

Funeral services will be conducted by the Point Lodge of Masons Monday at 3:00 p.m. at Wilson and Kratzer chapel. Cremation will take place at Berkeley Crematory.

Rev. Joseph A. Tenbroeck, vicar of St. Edmund's Episcopal church, will officiate.

Extension Given Employers By State

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 15—UP—The State Unemployment Reserves commission today announced an extension to Feb. 28 of the date for compliance by California employers with the terms of the act creating an unemployment fund to which they and their workers must contribute. The original time limit was Feb. 15 but the magnitude of the task and perplexing questions which have arisen led to the advancement.

"HE DID" BAGS $26,000 IN BIG DERBY

SANTA ANITA PARK, Arcadia, Cal., Feb. 15.—UP—"He Did", a black colt owned by Mrs. Silas B. Mason, today ploughed his way around a muddy oval to win $26,000 in the second renewal of the Santa Anita Derby.

"He Did" came up at the first quarter and never again was headed by any of the 10 classy three-year-olds entered in what may be classed as a preview of the Kentucky Derby.

"He Did", an entry with Valevictorian, another Mason colt and the heavy favorite, before the derby, paid $5.20 to win, $3.00 to place and $3.20 to show.

Valiant Fox, owned by N. W. Church, was second to pay $4.00 to place and the same amount to show. Gold Seeker, a brown filly from the Foxcatcher Farms, placed third. A long shot—25 to 1—in the betting—Gold Seeker paid his backers $10.40 to show.

"He Did" ridden by jockey Wayne Wright, set a gruelling pace as he galloped through ankle-deep mud on a track made heavy by almost a week of incessant rain. The time was 1:49 2/5 for the mile and one sixteenth.

With added money, the $25,000 derby was worth $26,000 to the winner. Valiant Fox won $4,000, Gold Seeker $2,000 and Tennob, owned by the Millsdale Stable, won $1,000 for finishing in fourth place.

A total of $131,292 was wagered on the race, bringing the afternoon's mutuel betting to $541,220, with two races to go. The record for Santa Anita betting was established here last week when $831,000 was bet.

Italians Start New Offensive

ROME, Feb. 15.—Marshal Pietro Badoglio reported "intense activity" on the northern front today, while usually informed sources said a vigorous Italian offensive was being pushed there.

The official war communique, sent from the Italian northern headquarters by the commander-in-chief said:

"On the Eritrean front, there is intense activity by patrols south of Makale. On the Somaliland front the situation is unchanged."

Informed sources said the new northern drive was designed to give Italy absolute control over the mountainous Tembien sector.

The new maneuver was described as an effort to solidify Marshal Pietro Badoglio's positions on a line from Abbi Addi, about 25 miles west of Makale, west to the confluence of the Takkaze and Ueri rivers.

Child Dies After Pigeon Broth Diet

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15.—UP—A poverty-stricken father and mother who said they had nothing else to feed her but pigeon broth, wept inconsolably over the emaciated body of their two year old daughter today while county authorities investigated a medical report she died of starvation.

Little Frances Barron died in convulsions after her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barron, brought her from Oxnard to a relative's home in North Hollywood. According to Dr. E. D. Pratt of Burbank, the baby died of starvation.

"We had no milk" the mother sobbed. "We had no food to give her, nothing but pigeon broth. For two months, that's all we could give her. Then she died."

County medical authorities ordered an autopsy to verify Dr. Pratt's findings.

Barron said he had been out of work for many months.

Goya Is Nursery Stake Winner At Miami Track

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15.—UP—Crescent Stable's Goya nosed out J. C. Clark's Anglo-Saxon at the finish of the nursery stakes No. 1, first of the juvenile specials of 1936, at Hialeah Park today.

The colts were so closely aligned crossing the wire that the stewards awaited the development of a photograph of the finish before awarding the $3,100 purse to the Chatlenge II-Peggy Mac colt which finished twelfth in his lone previous start.

A half a length behind the Chestnut son of Saxon, Hi Vic, Willie Crump's speedy High Cloud gelding which set the pace to the stretch in the three panel dash, accounted for the short end of the purse with Maemere Farm's Maedic, which was coupled with Maespur and favorite in the field of 11, a belabored fourth.

Sammy Renick hustled Goya home over the muddy track in :35 2/5 and his backers collected the lucrative return of $123.40, $17.80 and $21 across the board for their $2 tickets.

LEGION BIDS FOR BRUBAKER BAER FIGHT

El Cerrito American Legion, which has been promoting amateur fights, is first to make a bid for the opening comeback scrap of the former world champion, Max Baer. Through Louis Davis, promoter for the Legion, and Mike Dolan, matchmaker, they asked yesterday for Max to meet Phil Brubaker, Dinuba walloper, within the next few months.

DEPENDS ON MAX

Frank Pecassi, who is handling Max's affairs, told Davis and Dolan he wouldn't know until after Max boxes for the first time today since he reopened training, whether the ex-title holder will be able to make the grade or not, but that they might be in line for the proposed bout, since they had made the first offer.

The El Cerrito pair would have to get a promoter's license, as they hold none for the amateur bouts. Pecassi told them he would let them know within a week whether or not Baer would be ready to take on Brubaker soon.

If they get the bout the El Cerrito Legion, which probably would sponsor the bout, would build an outdoor arena to seat 15,000 persons, Davis and Dolan said, provided they could get a license to stage the fight.

Baer's difficulties with the State Athletic Commission also must be settled before he can fight in California.

Pecassi says Baer looks fine, but he doesn't know just what he will be able to do. He also said in answer to a query, that Ora Forman would get a chance to stage a bout with Brubaker if the match could be made, in view of his own association with the Oakland promoter and the latter's connections with the Baers. He said that he might suggest Forman act with the El Cerrito Legion in staging the scrap, but that the bout would go to the highest bidder.

To that Davis and Dolan were apathetic. "If we take on the bout at all we'll promote it ourselves," they declared.

Workouts Are Given Horses For Big Race

ARCADIA, Feb. 15.—UP—A mile and a quarter workout, the distance of the Santa Anita handicap, was given A. C. Vanderbilt's Discovery, favorite for the $100,000 event next Saturday, over a muddy track at Santa Anita park today.

The 1935 handicap champion was well rated throughout his long trial clocked in 2:14 and breezing at the finish.

Greentree Stable's First Ministrel another prominent eligible to the Washington's birthday special, was impressive in a mile and a furlong test, timed in 2:01 3-5 after being slightly snugged for the entire trip.

Fred M. Alger Jr.s Azucar, last year's winner of the Santa Anita handicap, breezed an easy mile in 1:51 accompanied by Dark Winter, a stablemate, in preparation for the big race next Saturday.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—UP—James J. Tierney, for 15 years secretary of the New York Giants baseball club turned in his resignation today effective April 1. Edward T. Brannick, an attache of the Giants office and sometimes food secretary of the club, was appointed as Tierney's successor. Tierney's resignation was made by Horace C. Stoneham, new president of the Giants, who named Brannick to the job.

Stoneham said that Tierney for more than one year had considered resigning, "just to get a change."

ENGLAND TO BE WINNER OF ICE HOCKEY

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN [illegible] — Great Britain and United States battled to a [illegible] in three bitter overtime periods today, virtually clinching for the English the ice hockey championship of the fourth winter Olympic games.

The game which consists of 75 minutes of actual playing time, was savagely fought with both teams moving at a tremendous clip near the end in an effort to break the deadlock. In the final overtime period, however, many players dropped to the ice from exhaustion.

Under the complicated system of determining the championship, Britain has a virtual strangle-hold on the title, which Canada has won each time since the winter games were inaugurated in 1924.

Canada which lost to Britain in a semi-final game that also counts in the final standings, automatically was eliminated by tonight's deadlock.

The situation is this:

Great Britain with two victories and one tie has five points in the standings with its schedule complete.

United States, with one victory and one tie, is second, with three points.

Canada, with a victory and a defeat, is third with two and Czechoslovakia, which has lost to all three above teams, is last.

U. C. Defeats St. Mary's College

BERKELEY, Feb. 15.—UP — A last minute foul goal by Ed Dougherty, substitute guard, gave University of California a 30-29 victory over St. Mary's college of Moraga here tonight.

Dougherty, one of the heroes of California's overwhelming win over Stanford Friday night, dropped in his lone foul try with the score tied and less than 60 seconds to play.

California used its second string players for 59 minutes of action.

ADD ONE TO DEATH TOLL OF GANGDOM

CHICAGO, Feb. 15—UP—Gangland wagged its head tonight over "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, who was slain as the penalty of too much ambition when guns blazed in a dingy bowling alley early today.

WAS AMBITIOUS

Jack wasn't content with his split-up of the Al Capone syndicate and tried to shove his way into the "big" racket, it was said. If he had stuck to gambling and labor organization and continued paying to Al Capone in Alcatraz prison he might have died of old age.

But like many late contemporaries, McGurn wasn't content. Tonight he rested on a slab in a morgue to which many of his victims had been carried.

WORKING FOR CAPONE

"Machine Gun Jack," who was born Vincent Gelardi in Chicago's "Little Italy" was working for the imprisoned Capone when he was shot from behind in the bowling alley, the United Press learned from reliable underworld sources.

MOTIVE NOT CLEAR

Police were of varying beliefs regarding the motive. Police Captain Martin Mullen in the district where the killing took place believed it was evidently in retaliation for the St. Valentine's Day killings".—The machine gun assassination of seven of George (Bugs) Moran's mobsters in an abandoned car barn seven years ago yesterday.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan and Captain John Stege, Deputy police commissioner, said they believed there was no connection with the St. Valentine's Day massacre, but that Jack might have been trying to "muscle into the alky racket" recently.

Sullivan hinted there might be a connection between McGurn's death and the execution of three gangsters last November 14 and 15.

Promotion Comes To A. O. Grimstvedt

A. O. Grimstvedt, 787 Mesa Way, a member of the sales department of the local Ford Motor company branch, has been transferred to Cincinnati, O. where he will take over the duties of office manager.

PRIZE PLAY TO BE GIVEN AT CHURCH

"St. Claudia," a prize play given first award in 1924, will be presented Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the El Cerrito Community M. E. Church, by the Olmstead players, a group of nationally known professional artists.

These players are actors with years of professional experience in drama. They gave 'St. Claudia' in one of the large churches of Los Angeles over five years ago. They were invited to give it in another church and many other requests followed. They were then called to another city. The result has been that they have traveled all over the United States and have given the play practically every night for the past five years and in more than 1200 churches.

A recent newspaper critic says "Many persons who have seen the Passion Play in Europe place 'St. Claudia' as given by these players as its equal in religious value."

There will be no admission charge Tuesday evening. A sustaining offering will be taken. Come early for seats. The time of the service is 7:45 P. M.

Prelate's Body To Lie In State

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15—UP—The body of the Right Rev. Monsignor W. J. O'Mahoney, who established the annual novenas to St. Anne which brought thousands of Roman Catholics to San Francisco annually, will lie in state from Sunday to Tuesday in the church he built, St. Anne's Parish, it was announced today. Monsignor O'Mahoney died last night after a priesthood of 51 years. His funeral will be Tuesday with high dignitaries of the church participating.

PAN AMERICAN PEACE PLAN IS OUTLINED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—UP—President Franklin D. Roosevelt sought tonight to build from the "tragedy of the Chaco" a permanent and abiding peace for the Western hemisphere.

In unusual personal letters, the President urged heads of Latin-American republics to meet around a council table, at Buenos Aires or elsewhere, and erect a peace machine which would outlaw war forever.

By making impossible the outbreak of hostilities in Pan-America, Mr. Roosevelt pointed out, efforts of the League of Nations and other peace agencies would be reinforced and the cause of world peace would be strengthened.

South American reaction to the extension of the President's "good neighbor" policy was immediate and laudatory.

Settlement of the Gran Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay which cost a huge toll of lives and burdened the two nations with a crushing debt, was seized upon by the President as providing an "altogether favorable opportunity" for Latin-American nations to band together for peace.

The President considered the issues at stake so vital that he stepped beyond usual diplomatic procedure in sending his personal message to the Latin-American presidents.

He suggested three possible methods through which maintenance of peace in the western hemisphere might best be safeguarded.

1. "Through prompt ratification of all the inter-American peace instruments already negotiated.

2. "Through the amendment of existing peace instruments in such manner as experience has demonstrated to be most necessary.

3. "Through the creation of common accord of new instruments of peace additional to those already formulated.

Murder Dog Is Given Home By S. F. Teacher

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Feb. 15—UP—Rex, German police dog convicted of the mass murder of 28 cats and an unknown number of sheep, today left for San Francisco in the custody of his new mistress, Miss Helen Malen Burnett, operator of a kindergarten and music school in the bay city.

The dog, under sentence of death for his asserted crimes, was spared by authorities when an agreement was reached that he would be sent out of the stock country.

Mrs. Alice Valentine, owner of the the dog, finally accepted the offer of Miss Burnett to give him a home, preferring that he stay in California rather than go to South Dakota where a rancher had offered to take him.

CONTESTS TO BE MADE IN PRIMARIES

which provide for primary election of delegates is not known.

Other Republicans have avoided Ohio and Illinois so far. Former President Herbert C. Hoover has made no move for delegate support. Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas has been insisting he was too busy running the state government to go after out-state delegations. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, has suggested that his state send an uninstructed delegation to Cleveland. Senator L. J. Dickinson recently announced he would not enter any presidential primaries.

MAY WIDEN FIELD

Borah's plans are most advanced so far. He may go into California, the Dakotas and Oregon. The Senator has sanctioned campaigns for delegates in Wisconsin and New York. Former Governor Gifford Pinchot has recommended that Borah stay out of Pennsylvania, but no decision has been announced. The other primary states are Massachusetts, Maryland, West Virginia and New Jersey.

New York's regular Republican organization is striving for an uninstructed convention delegation.

Brutal Beating Laid At Door Of Border Patrol

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 15.—UP—James A. Taylor, who said he was a property owner in Hollywood, a Spanish-American and World War veteran under compensation, appealed to the United States Attorney's office here to be allowed to go home to California, from which he was barred by the Los Angeles border patrol.

Taylor said that he was bruised, abused, lost his baggage and overcoat when he was seized from a bus at the California line south of Medford and turned back into Oregon, twice, despite the fact that he had a stage ticket to Hollywood and $5.10 in cash.

He exhibited bruises which he said were caused when Los Angeles police forced him to attempt to board a freight train moving north. He said he and several others were forced to sleep all night on the floor of an abandoned building in Hornbrook, Calif., with only a half loaf of bread and a cup of water. The Los Angeles police, he said, took all his papers, registration slips for two California automobiles, his driver's license and other credentials and tore them up.

State Income Will Take Toll Of Federal Men

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—UP—Employes of the federal public works administration in California must pay a state income tax, Attorney General U. S. Webb ruled today, if their incomes come within the limits of the law. The attorney general indicated he regarded PWA employes as not necessarily government employes because "the federal government is now engaged in many functions not necessarily governmental.

"If the income is derived from essential governmental functions it is exempt, otherwise not," Webb wrote in response to an inquiry from Dwight W. Stephenson, assistant state director of PWA in Los Angeles.

Owl Eating Shift Will Be Abandoned

Night owls, those whose work keeps them out in the small and earlies and those that like through pleasure to see the rosy tinted dawn will regret to learn that after tonight Harry & Son restaurant will close at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Patronage, according to the proprietors, does not justify the expense of maintaining an all-night eating place. Those who crave sustenance after the clock strikes one will therefore be compelled to look elsewhere to satisfy the cravings of the inner man.

The place will be open, however, for early breakfasts and and will continue to serve the eating public as heretofore.

FAINTING SPELL

Joe Lema, 68, 554 Golden Gate avenue was treated at Richmond Cottage hospital last night following a fainting spell at Sixteenth and Macdonald avenue. He was given treatment at the hospital and returned to his home.

MISS THELMA E. REED, former assistant librarian in this county, has been appointed Napa county librarian.

Storm's Toll

HERE IS one result of the freakish weather that brought sleet, snow, rain, gales, zero cold and thawing as an Arctic breath met a swirling storm center from Texas over the Eastern States. This bus slid backward as it neared the top of an icy hill near Sharon, Pa., and dropped to the bottom of a 30-foot embankment, injuring 11 persons, one seriously.

Inhalator Saves Life Of Woman

BERKELEY, Feb. 15.—A fire department crew worked for three hours with an inhalator today to save the life of Mrs. Estelle G. Marsh, 33, near death from strangling as the result of what physicians described as croup.

Mrs. Marsh, wife of Dr. Gerald Marsh, assistant professor of public speaking at the University of California, was stricken in her home. Her physician called police. They in turn summoned the fire department inhalator squad.

Eventually revived, Mrs. Marsh was taken to Alta Bates Hospital, where physicians said her condition still was critical.

Slayer Of Two Is Guillotined

AVIGNON, France, Feb. 15.—UP—Michel Nicolini, "tough guy," died on the guillotine today, somewhat surprised that members of his gang did not snatch him from the knife of Henri Anatole Deibler, executioner.

Nicolini, called Mike the Corsican, murdered the Algerian beauty Querdia Ben Ikleff—"Ouida the Tatooed"—because he wanted to get even with her lover. A month later he killed the woman owner of a house of ill repute.

Wealthy Broker Granted Divorce

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—Walter S. Heller, wealthy San Francisco investment broker, was granted a divorce from Mrs. Claire Sinsheimer Heller today by Superior Judge J. J. Van Nostrand.

He charged desertion, and testified that she left him 18 days after 16 years of married life. She refused his plea to return, he told the court, and said she wanted freedom to "live her own life."

Mrs. Heller filed the original divorce complaint last year after their separation and alleged that Heller had taken their children to Honolulu. Her action was dropped. A property settlement was agreed upon. Both parents will have access to the children, Marjorie, 11; Claire, 6, and Stephen, 4.

LITTLE JOKER JEOPARDIZES ARMY PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—UP—A "joker" was discovered in the $345,226,318 War Department supply bill tonight which army experts said might jeopardize the program for purchase of 569 additional airplanes.

A little five-line amendment limiting profits on all contracts for ordnance and aircraft to ten per cent was inserted without objection a few minutes before the House passed the bill late yesterday.

The full significance of the amendment was not realized until tonight. Chairman John J. McSwain of the House military affairs committee and members of the appropriations committee, said it would have to be "sharply revised" by the Senate if airplane purchases are to be made on schedule.

The amendment was offered by Representative W. D. MacFarlane, D., Texas, who briefly informed the House a similar provision was defeated in last year's navy supply bill. This was erroneous, it was later found. The profits limitation amendment was in the vinson $1,000,000,000 treaty navy authorization bill.

The War Department bill was in the hands of the Senate appropriations committee today with indications that the largest peacetime appropriation for national defense, $376,888,000, carried in the House bill, would receive Senate committee approval.

Gunplay Trial Of Mayor Recessed

SANTA BARBARA, Feb. 15—Following detailed testimony from two key prosecution witnesses, preliminary hearing of Mayor Edmund O. Hanson, charged with assault with a deadly weapon against City License Inspector Thomas V. was recessed today until Monday morning.

Vice from the stand charged that the mayor threatened to "run him out of town" and ordered him from his office at the point of a gun.

Secretary Swanson Suffers Setback

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—UP—Secretary of Navy Claude Swanson suffering from pleurisy, was gravely ill tonight and naval hospital attendants regarded his condition very serious.

He suffered a setback this morning and, although the 77 year old secretary rallied somewhat, physicians were concerned about him.

O'NEIL DRAMA FEATURED AT THE FOX TODAY

Today will be something of a field day at the Fox theater where Eugene O'Neill's great American drama, "Ah Wilderness" will be shown on a double program with "Whispering Smith."

Many a time honored tune, to which mother and father danced in their youth, is heard again as "Ah Wilderness" unfolds a rich cross section of American life 30 years ago, with Wallace Beery and Lionel Barrymore for its stars, and Eric Linden in the role of the youth whose experience of calf love supplies the tale with much of its fun and much poignancy.

It took considerable effort, it is said, to dig up some of the tunes that spelled gayety in 1906, and which are almost forgotten today. "Under the Bamboo Tree," "Bedelia," "Waltz Me Around Again Willie," "Then You'll Remember Me" and "Arrah Wanna" are a few less transitory than the rest, which are used to establish the musical atmosphere.

In "Whispering Smith Speaks," O'Brien turns from a cowboy to a railroad man. Swift-paced and filled with the zest for adventure, the new film pictures the adventures that befall a railroad magnate's son when he undertakes to become a rail executive.

The climax of the picture shows how the young adventurer turns a whole railway upside down in a race to save the girl he loves.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 15.—UP—Looking forward with Edward Small: The production chief at Reliance Studios sees an abrupt about face for clear, sharp photography, an increased use of color, more biographies and, heaven help us, more musicals.

"A recent survey by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences showed that audiences do not want diffused, overly-artistic photographic trends. "They prefer to see what the players like. All producers will swing back to distinct camera work.

"The new year will see further experimentation in, and the possible perfection of, stereoscopic and color films and television," Small said. "More than 525 features will be produced, which is an increase by 25 of the usual number made here. More money will be put into production, and that money will show on the screen, for the past year has seen a new efficiency in the studios; much waste and deadwood have been dropped. Better pictures will be made and enough of these will strangle double bills."

Operettas, rather than hotcha musical comedies, will be generously represented on production schedules, Small believed. It'll be a mistake, however if the studios crowd them too close together, said he. He thought that more screen biographies such as "Beau Brummel" and "Napoleon" will be good business ventures. And he saw a more sparing use of superlatives in picture advertisements.

"Fact advertising and the elimination of time-worn adjectives are on the way," he observed. "At the same time there will be a radical change in the type of trailers used to advertise forthcoming pictures."

In retrospection, he picked the rise of these personages as one of the outstanding events of the old year:

Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Eleanor Powell, Nelson Eddy, Lawrence Tibbett: Robert Donat, Errol Flynn, Lily Pons, Nino Martini, Gladys Swarthout, George Houston, Freddie Bartholomew Louise Rainer and Rosalind Russell.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 — The Post Office Department is encountering secret international opposition to its plans for extending the Trans-Pacific airmail service to the Chinese mainland. So far it has only been able to obtain landing rights on the Portuguese island of Macao, about seventy miles from Hongkong. . . . Two big items in the estate left by the late Huey Long were a $120,000 life insurance policy, and a share in $160,000 of legal fees he earned as special counsel for Louisiana in tax collecting cases. . . . Despite the severity of the weather January had its bright spots—for stockholders. Dividend declarations were the highest for the month since 1931. . . . Continued postponement of the Supreme Court's Tennessee Valley Authority decision has given rise to a wide variety of conjectures. The latest is that there will be three opinions: one holding the entire act unconstitutional, another holding all of it constitutional, and a third— reputedly Hughes and Roberts—ruling only the sale of electric power invalid. . . . The Social Security Board is proceeding with great wariness in enforcing the unemployment insurance provisions of its act. Reason is that the Board wants to stave off as long as possible a court test of this feature of the law.

Nineteen-year old daughter Rose did almost as much talking as her mother at Mrs. Huey Long's first press conference in Washington. When the new Senator was asked if she would continue to propagandize her late husband's 'share the wealth' doctrine, Rose interjected, "It is already spread all over the country." . . . . . .

SMITH ANSWER

Inside word is that President Roosevelt is planning a personal answer to Al Smith. Incidentally, the Liberty League Warrior has only begun his fusillading. He expects to make three or four more attacks on the Administration before the nominating conventions, the first being in Boston. . . . Within three hours after Representative Virginia Jenckes of Indiana had launched a petition for the establishment of a cafeteria to be operated by "private initiative" in the new House Office Building, she had ninety-six signatures. Mrs. Jenckes expected it would take her a week to get that number; but irate members, angered at the high prices, poor food and worse service of the House restaurant, flocked to sign her petition. . . . Harry Hopkins has joined the economy drive. He has lopped off $3,000 a month from his rent bill by giving up a large batch of separate offices used by the WPA press section. . . . Biggest raid ever made by the Securities and Exchange Commission took place quietly the other day in Dallas, Tex. Field agents o the SEC arrested forty-two persons, whom they charged with frauds in oil and hotel stocks. The agents did their work so quietly that it was several days before the Washington press office of the SEC knew anything about it.

There may be smarter but no more active—vocally— members of Congress than New York's carnation-wearing Senator Royal S. Copeland. His activities last session fill six full pages of the Congressional Record Index.

SAFE MARGIN

President Roosevelt has been informed by Democratic leaders of the Senate that a secret poll of the chamber on the Frazier-Lemke greenback farm mortgage refinancing bill showed an eight-vote margin against the measure. Notwithstanding this reassuring check, Administrationites are most uneasy over the inflationary proposal. . . . Vice President Jack Garner "put on the dog" in a big way for his recent party for the President. Despite the severe cold, the usually shaggy-haired Texan got a close-trimmed haircut. . . . Discovering Minnesota's youthful Farmer-Laborite Paul Kvale snapping candid-camera pictures in the House, several members complained heatedly to Speaker Joe Byrns. Byrns called Kvale on the carpet, warned him not to repeat his prank on pain of an official reprimand.

Tiniest Tot

MAKING A desperate fight for existence, here is Nancy Lee Vogt, supposed to be the world's smallest baby, who weighed 15 ounces when she was born in a hospital in Oakland. She was only 12 inches long, 3 1-2 inches across the shoulders, and her head was hardly larger than a golf ball. She was fed every hour with a medicine dropper.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Broadway seething artery of the midtown, goes back to omnibuses after forty years. The motor vehicles have just replaced the rattling, antiquated trolley cars, which in turn supplanted the horse-cars back in 1893. Gas fumes will now finish off all the Midway revelers who haven't already choked over bad theatrical gags—Eating places off the way: The Don Carlos Inn, down in the Village, and the Artists and Writers Club on West Fortieth street. Don Carlos lets you in to his small place, and after the second visit, himself does the ordering for you. John Bleeck is host at the Writers Club, which is raided especially by members of the journalistic fraternity. It's Earl Thomas who suggests to me that chain broadcasting in Spain must be done over a casta-network!—Noel Francis, the blonde siren of the movies, is diverting customers at the Central Park Casino. And Sherkot, the sawed-off clown at the French Casino, has changed his hilarious pantomime of a soccer goal-keeper to one of an ice hockey goalie. Thinks Americans will get the second one better. Post-Depression Note: A certain shrewd doctor in town has put his name, address and telephone number, as well as visiting hours, on expensive golf balls. These he drops at the more swanky golf clubs—Fore-sight?

REST—Relaxation period for music fans in town is to go up on a Friday night to the Juilliard School on Claremont avenue, where they've been giving a cycle of Beethoven programs. The school orchestra, which is giving the performances, does some strange things at the concerts, injecting various elements not usually found in sober Carnegie Hall.

A particularly enjoyable element is the timpani-player, a young and athletic-looking fellow of large build. He pushes up his sleeves, squares off like a heavyweight boxer, and comes crashing down on the drum heads with a terrific force which all but blows the walls part. The orchestra itself contains an independent lot of players, who don't always subscribe to the same theories.

A few weeks ago, while Ernest Hutcheson was conducting Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, the players got all mixed up with each other's views on how the work should be performed. Hutcheson himself got so confused that he dropped his baton on the floor during one pleading session. Half of the audience, headed by old timers like Alexander Siloti, rose and walked out while the symphony was still in progress.

Not all music fans, unfortunately, have the proper sense of relaxation.

DR. H. L. CARPENTER, who has been confined to a San Francisco hospital is expected to be able to return to his office here in the near future.

One Christmas Eve

by Ruth Louise Ayers

It is Christmas Eve on Houseboat Row, squalid river colony. Big Adam, evangelist, holds services in his houseboat Mission, little knowing that his son Dan, lured by two crooks, has got into serious trouble and has sought shelter at Luke Conners' floating bar down the Row. Luke's daughter Nightingale is expecting a visit from the rich and aristocratic Vincent Rocke, whom she loves. Fearful lest police will come in search of Dan, she sends Joe Jarvis with a note to Vincent, telling him not to come. Meanwhile, in another boat, old Katie Jarvis, Joe's wife, who took to drink when their son Lester was sent to prison years before, takes advantage of Joe's absence by getting drunk. No one has ever told Katie that Lester was electrocuted. Under the effects of whisky, a daring plan comes to her.

CHAPTER XXI

KATIE JARVIS drew herself up sharply from the doze into which she had fallen. She found herself seated beside the open trunk. She was puzzled at first by the strange assortment of clothes around her. Then she remembered. She had planned to dress in her best and go out on a special errand.

That last nip she had had seemed to have made her sleepy. She vaguely remembered hearing someone call her name outside. But probably she had been dreaming.

At any rate, sleep had sobered her a little. She stood up with renewed interest. Her eyes turned hopefully toward the picture of Lester.

"Your ma's going to help you," she promised him.

Joe might be coming along soon, so she would have to hurry. She picked out a dress. It was of taffeta—a gray, faded taffeta with dabs of dirty lace at the front and on the sleeves.

Looking at herself in the mirror when she donned the dress gave her reassurance. She looked like old ladies she had seen in the movies. She wrapped a shawl around her head and slipped into her rusty coat.

Slipping outside, she peered up the path. There was no sign of Joe, but she was worried when she saw the lights in the chapel going out. He'd be coming along in a minute. She must hurry.

She went down the gangplank to the river edge. On the path above, she saw the figure of a man.

"You seen my Joe tonight?" she called to him.

"No, I ain't seen him."

"Good," chuckled Katie to herself.

She got into her skiff, lifting the trailing taffeta skirts. If she'd known about this trip before, she would have had Joe put some new planks in the boat. It was cracked, and the water made shallow circles on the floor where her skirt trailed. She loosened the boat, picked up the oars.

A RADIO sounded from one of the boats docked near the end of the Row. Every window was lighted, and figures passed fleetingly before them! Through one window, a gayly decorated Christmas tree could be seen. Katie dipped her oars idly. She knew the folks in the boat—recalled that their holiday celebrations were noisy wtih laughter, and lavish with food and drinks. They'd be glad to have her drop in. Of course, she had work ahead of her, but it was cold on the river, and another drink would warm her up. She would not stay long.

Quickly, she veered the boat around and pulled into the dock.

"Besides," she assured herself, "I've about made up my mind to get a tree when I come back, and it'll do no harm to see if they can spare me a bit of their trimmings."

She knocked at the door, stepping back as it was flung open.

"Oh, it's Katie Jarvis. Merry Christmas, Katie!"

"I just came in to see your tree," she said.

Someone grabbed her hand and pulled her into the room where the tree was. To her blurred eyes nothing had ever seemed so beautiful as that tree.

Wistfully, her eyes drinking in its grandeur, she said, "I wisht I had a tree like that over to my place."

The family laughed easily. They knew Katie.

"Listen, Katie, in about a week you can have this tree. Yep, we'll cart it over to your house and you can keep it around all winter."

"That'll be fine," she said slowly, picturing it in the Jarvis parlor. "But I kinda thought I'd buy myself a tree up to the market so's I could have it for tomorrow."

SHE looked at them, craftiness in her eyes. She fingered the tree's glittery ornaments.

"Only, I couldn't have such pretty trimmings to it," she continued. "I was thinking mebbe you'd have some left over that you could spare me."

"We got enough here to trim a forest," one of the men volunteered. "Ma, get a box and pack some of these trinkets you got laying around for Katie."

Katie's pale eyes lighted. "You're very kind," she whispered. "I shoulda brought my bottle along to give you a drink for the holiday."

They roared at this. And someone called out, "Get Katie a drink!" When a glass was placed in her hand, one of the men thumped her on the back.

"Here's to yuh, Katie!" he said. "Wouldn't be the same old Row here if it weren't for our Katie!"

She drained the glass, then turned to the man who had spoken.

"You want to hear some news?" she said mysteriously.

THEY all crowded around her. "Spill it. What's the big plot afoot."

Impressed with holding the center of the stage, she spoke slowly.

"I'm on my way down the river to the penitentiary! Going to march right up to the gates and ask to see the Warden!"

"Oh, no, Katie!" Everyone spoke at once.

But the intensity of her eyes silenced them.

"There's other boys, worse than mine, gets pardons on Christmas Eve. I thought, mebbe, if I go myself and talk to the Warden, he'll see that a poor old mother's heart is breaking for her boy and will let him come home." Mention of the poor old mother's heart brought tears to her eyes. She wiped them away.

There was complete stillness in the room. Everyone was staring at her with startled eyes.

Charges are Moderate

It is well to remember that a beautiful mortuary does not mean high prices, as this firm proves. With all the refinements and comforts to be found here, charges are never higher than the smallest incomes can easily afford. By including everything in one plainly marked price, we have made it possible for every family to make an appropriate selection without financial hardship.

"Soul", Subject At Science Church

"Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used today, February 16, in all Churches of Christ Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Soul." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, Master, which is the great commandment in the law? Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment" (Matt. 22: 35-38).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "The first demand of this Science is, 'Thou shalt have no other gods before me.' This me is Spirit. Therefore the command means this: Thou shalt have no intelligence, no life, no substance, no truth, no love, but that which is spiritual" (p. 467).

Mercury Drops To 52 Below In Butte, Montana

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 15.—Fifty-two below zero official temperatures in widely-scattered Montana areas spread distress throughout the State today.

At Roundup, Big Sandy and Kenilworth the mercury sank to minus 52. Minus 49 at Great Falls, minus 47 at Big Timber and at Williston, N. Dak., were the next coldest places.

Unofficial lows of minus 60 near White Sulphur Springs; minus 58 in the valleys north and west of Helena and of 54 below zero on the outskirts of Great Falls were reported.

Rural schools all over the State were closed. The State Highway Department and county road supervisors reported all available highway plows and equipment were in use to keep highways open.

SECONDARY ANEMIA

Your blood contains approximately thirty thousand billions of red blood cells, it is said. One of the important duties of the red cell is to carry oxygen from the lungs to the tissues all over the body. The extraordinary power of the red blood cell to absorb oxygen is given it by a special substance it contains, called hemoglobin. Hemoglobin is the coloring matter which makes the red blood cell red and contains iron. When the red blood cells are reduced in number, the patient is said to have anemia. Usually, there is a corresponding reduction in hemoglobin at the same time.

Two important types of anemia are known: pernicious anemia and secondary anemia. Secondary anemia is the most common disorder of the blood and may be associated with many abnormal conditions. It is only natural that, when a disorder exists somewhere in the body, that the blood will also suffer. This is most true when the disease brings about some interference with nutrition so that the blood-making parts are cut off, from getting all of the elements needed, or are prevented from using some element, such as iron, in making new, healthy blood cells.

A partial list of some of the causes of chronic secondary anemia includes: lack of the right kind of food; a disorder which prevents the normal assimilation of food; continued loss of blood; tapeworm; rheumatic fever in children; and the presence of pus pockets. Probably the principal cause of secondary anemia is incorrect diet and the patient who subsists on irregular, haphazard meals consisting largely of refined foods and lacking in vegetables is the one most likely to develop secondary anemia. By some observers, this type of anemia has been called "nutritional anemia" meaning that type resulting from faulty nutrition. Lack of sunshine, insufficient sleep, and constipation also play a part in producing secondary anemia.

Many patients jump to the conclusion that they are anemic because they are pale, have a poor appetite, are listless, or develop what they term a "run-down condition." Such conclusions are incorrect as often as they are right and the only way to be definitely sure that anemia is present is to have a blood test made. A test made on healthy blood will show that there are present about five million red blood cells and about six thousand, five hundred while blood cells. In secondary anemia, the white blood cells will be increased above the normal figure whereas the red blood cells will be decreased, being below the normal. Secondary anemia may be slight or severe, depending upon the reduction in red cells which is found.

I have found that it is possible to bring about a noticeable improvement in the blood condition through placing the patient on a short fast on orange juice and laboratory tests made of the blood during the fasting period will show an increase in the number of red blood cells. At the same time, there usually occurs a reduction in the number of white blood cells, thus bringing about a more normal balance of the blood corpuscles. The fast should be followed by a careful diet and the patient is to be instructed to correct all errors in living. There is no other disease in which fasting, diet, sunshine, fresh air and exercise will produce so rapid an improvement in so short a time, as in secondary anemia. Of course, when definite pus pockets have formed and are known to be present, suitable local treatment should be given.

Additional information on SECONDARY ANEMIA is now available in article form and I advise that those of you who wish further information, send for the article. Another article is also ready, which is called HAVE A BLOOD TEST MADE. Either article, or both, will be sent to any one who desires them and who writes to me in care of this newspaper and encloses ten cents and one large, self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Whites of Eyes Are Yellow)

Question: Mr. Enos J. writes: "Why are the whites of my eyes yellow and what would you suggest doing?"

Answer: A distinct yellowing of the white of the eyes, if not produced by a local condition, may indicate trouble with the liver or gall bladder. It would be necessary for you to have an examination by a doctor to find out the cause.

(Have Teeth X-Rayed)

Question: Mrs. Bedelia O. asks: "Could a dead tooth cause neuritis or rheumatism if the tooth shows a pus-bag in the x-ray picture?"

Answer: It is possible to develop neuritis or rheumatism from abscessed teeth. X-rays are a very valuable aid to diagnosis, and I advise patients to have their teeth x-rayed at least once a year.

(Best Fats)

Question: Mrs. Mattie McK. inquires: "Can a person digest fats after the gall bladder has been removed? If so, what kinds are best?"

Answer: The digestion of fats should not be affected through the removal of the gall bladder. I consider some of the best fats and oils to be butter, cream, olive oil, corn oil, cotton seed oil, and the oil obtained from ripe avocados.

The First of Two Articles on the Practical Use Of the Emergency First Aid Kit

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

A REASONABLE knowledge of First Aid in emergencies should be one of the requirements of modern education. The almost universal use of the automobile, and our national tendency to go some place tend to increase physical injuries. As a result, it becomes more and more necessary that each automobile and camping outfit should contain a kit provided with the small necessities for immediate care in case of accidents, and the owner should have a fair knowledge of how to use them.

DR. CHRISMAN

A "First Aid Kit" need not be large or expensive. A small waterproof bag or box will hold all you need. Such a kit should contain a one and two inch roller bandage 10 yards long, A package of sterile gauze one to five yards long. A small spool of adhesive plaster, a little cotton. An ounce bottle of alcohol or Tincture of Iodine to sterilize instruments and wounds. An ounce of Spirits of Ammonia, a small pair of scissors and a dressing forceps, a two ounce box of sterile vaseline and one or two wooden tongue depressors, which may be used as splints for broken fingers.

KEEP THEM HANDY!

This series of first aid articles provides really practical information and should be clipped to carry in the car or placed within easy reach in the home.

Instead of one large roll of sterile gauze, several packages of small strips of gauze wrapped in cellophane or oiled paper, each one large enough for a single dressing, may be more convenient.

In case of an accident the first thing to do is to observe the patient and determine as far as possible how he is injured. If he is unconscious and there are no visible external injuries the thing to do is to let him alone. Place him in as comfortable a position as possible and keep him warm and dry. Do not give stimulants or attempt to move him. A blood vessel may be injured internally and a stimulant will increase hemorrhage.

One of the most important things is to know how to prevent bleeding. Even a slight bleeding, if allowed to continue for a long time, may so weaken the patient that a comparatively slight injury may prove serious. Many patients die because bleeding has been allowed to continue.

Almost all external bleeding can be controlled enough to prevent serious loss of blood. But, you must keep your head and think. If the bleeding is from an arm or leg and the blood is spurting out, take off three or four yards of your two inch roller bandage, double it several times and twist into a sort of rope.

Better Without Clothing

If possible remove the clothing about the bleeding part, and between it and the heart, always above the knee or elbow, bind your bandage rope around the limb and twist it tight. How tight? Tight enough to stop the bleeding. It can be kept on for fifteen to thirty minutes. Then loosened for a few minutes, allowing some fresh blood to enter the limb and then reapply the bandage.

It will also be advisable to place a clean dressing over the wound and bind it snugly with your roller bandage. If you have rapid oozing, the bandage should be applied below the wound.

A cut in the body, face, or head must be treated differently. Fold up your sterile gauze into a pad. If you do not have enough, several handkerchiefs or some cotton can be rolled inside the sterile gauze. This can be placed directly over the wound and the roller bandage applied so as to make tight pressure. It may be painful, but the bleeding must be stopped.

Do not take it off because blood oozes through the dressing. Saturation of the pad will increase the pressure and clots will form. You can at least stop some of the bleeding until help can be obtained.

The next thing to be observed is whether any bones may have been broken. Any unnatural position or bending of a limb may mean a broken bone. Some pain in the chest may mean broken ribs. If a bone is broken, place the limb in as comfortable position as possible and support it with a pad and piece of board until help comes.

Short Cuts

As curtains are likely to shrink in the first washing, a small tuck near the top or the hem line will save the time and trouble of reheming them after laundering. Be sure to remove the tucks before the curtains go into the tub.

A novel hot sauce to be served over vanilla ice cream is made by melting chocolate cover peppermint patties in a double boiler to which a few teaspoons of cream have been added. Stir until smooth and serve.

Cornelius Engert Gets The Job Easily

By TALBOT LAKE

VERY few persons win a job without encountering any opposition, but Cornelius Van H. Engert was swiftly confirmed by the Senate as Minister to Ethiopia. The Senate realized Engert was just about the only man capable of handling United States affairs in the dark empire, and also that he was the only one capable of handling the myriad of Ethiopian dialects.

There is a reason for his linguistic accomplishments. Engert was born in Vienna of Dutch parents, and was educated by private tutors. Later he came to America and studied at the University of California. Then he became a Fellow at Harvard in 1911 and 1912. After he was naturalized as an American citizen, Engert entered the diplomatic service as a student interpreter to the American consulate general in Constantinople. Not long afterward he was appointed interpreter to the Embassy there, and later took charge of the American agency of the Dardanelles.

During the war years of 1915 and 1916 he was again at the Embassy, but then he was assigned to The Hague for two years. Following this stretch of service he was transferred back to the Near East, where he had proved his ability. His next duties took him to Iran (Persia), Afghanistan, and Peiping, China. Finally he was transferred to Cairo, and from there finally reached Ethiopia.

The highlight of Engert's recent career came last summer when the United States voided that contemplated oil deal. Emperor Haile Selassie was so incensed about his failure to sell oil rights for hard cash that he took it out on Engert. The latter, being a soft-spoken man, remained calm, and after awhile Selassie made friends again. He is now decidedly in the good graces of the royal house.

Engert is of medium height, with gaunt features. His blue eyes shine out above a thin nose and below an intelligent brow topped with thinning, gray hair. He is smooth-mannered and is considered a good mixer.

Guide to Charm

Tub Exercise Easy to Take, Is Beneficial

By JACQUELINE HUNT

"BUT I haven't the time!" How often you say it, when you are advised to give more care to your complexion, or to relax or to take a few exercises. Yet all of these things are essential to health and beauty! That is the nice thing about a warm bath. You can give yourself a facial, relax, and even take some beneficial exercise while bathing.

Here are a few bathtub exercises good for strengthening flabby abdominal muscles and putting the waistline into shape. While your body is immersed in water it feels much lighter and exercises are easier to take, and just as beneficial.

For the first, lie on your back with the hands resting on the bottom of the tub. Holding the right knee stiff, lift the leg as high as possible, hold for a moment and then lower slowly. Repeat with the other leg. Lie back, supporting yourself with the palms of the hands on the bottom of the tub. With both knees rigid, raise the legs together as high as possible, hold a minute and lower slowly. Repeat about 10 times.

MISS HUNT

Keep the same position, only draw the knees up, keeping the feet firmly planted on the bottom of your tub. Hold a minute, then draw the knees back to the chest and from this position extend them as high in the air as possible. Hold and lower, keeping the knees stiff this time. Draw back to the starting position and repeat five times.

By this time you will probably feel like getting the business of the bath over with. Use a bath brush or one of the imported bath straps to massage the back and knead the rolls of flesh that are apt to accumulate about the shoulders and hips.

If you are exercise-minded they needn't stop here. Drying your body with a rough towel offers splendid opportunities for exercise. Grasp the towel firmly behind you with the right hand high above the head and the left lowered below the waistline. Move the towel back and forth, with the movements sufficiently vigorous to make the skin tingle. Now change the position of the hands and repeat.

Lower both hands, holding the towel across your hips. Pull it taut and give the pads of flesh around your hips a vigorous massaging. The massage exercises the muscles and increases the circulation and so helps eliminate unwanted deposits of flesh.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "What can I do for an irritated skin? It is dry and some days appears red and ugly; on other days it is clear, but still pimply. When I put on powder it clings to flaky parts on my nose and forehead, and makes my complexion look terrible. Could the soap be to blame? Also, the skin about my eyebrows grows hard and rough after I have plucked them. What can I do about this? —F. J. D."

Your skin is obviously sluggish and needs stimulating. Use a complexion brush and a good lather of bland soap for scrubbing gently twice a week. This will remove the dead flakes of skin and blackheads and stimulate the circulation. On other days use a wash cloth and soap for cleansing daily. Rinse and use ice cold water or a mild skin tonic to pep up the skin and tighten the pores.

The face powder you are using may be too fine and heavy for your type of skin. I would suggest you try a very light face powder, if what you are using isn't satisfactory after your skin shows some improvement over its present condition.

Remember, when you pluck your eyebrows, you leave a tiny gaping wound where each hair is removed. The tissues immediately surrounding them swell slightly and may even become infected if you are careless. Go over the areas both before and after removing the hairs with pure grain alcohol or some other antiseptic and do not remove the hairs in wholesale lots!

QUESTION: "How can I tell if my skin is too oily?—J. F."

A too-oily skin is shiny and apt to develop blackheads and enlarged pores. Powder does not adhere properly and there is enough surplus oil to be blotted up by a piece of cleansing tissue.

Southern Sausage

Pat out sausage meat in a baking dish, having the meat about 1 inch deep. Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. Drain off excess fat. Cover top with a rich biscuit dough, rolled out very thin, and score in squares convenient for serving. Bake in a very hot oven (425 deg. F.)

Symphony In Brown

Of brown woolen trimmed in mink, this outfit worn by Gladys Swarthout, of opera and screen fame, stresses the importance of assimilated jackets for daytime frocks. The lacings on the bodice are drawn through gold eyelets, which reflect the motif of the buckle which fastens the belt of brown woolen. Miss Swarthout's hat is a cap of brown felt enlivened by a silken fringe of brown. Her accessories are brown antelope.

Trimming Used Liberally On Hats for New Season

By IRENE VAIL

New York — Trimmings, again the vogue, are by no means confined to dresses, coats, and such garments. Hats are trimmed more liberally than has been the case for a long time. Each new season brings more talk than actual trimmings, but just now there are cleverly restrained decorations in the form of new flowers, such as gardenias, pansies, and wax roses to indicate the definitely "fine milliner" aspect of the new hats. A wide brimmed hat of white rough shiny straw having its squared flat crown made entirely of small lacquered green leaves, hand-sewed, and trimmed with several minute white rosebuds, is typical of the detail trend.

Color contributes importantly to the new hats, too, because it is through the employment of two and three-tone bright color accents that a definite novelty is achieved, while the hat silhouettes in themselves are definitely modern but very wearable, avoiding extreme or period effects. Carnation red, lobster red, twilight blue and intense blue shades, also the important "maize" tone are quoted among very prominent spring millinery shades.

It was inevitable that with the Chinese art influence registering so strongly in fashions, color, brilliant and rich, would come forward with new zest. The brilliant blues, reds, jade, and yellows are taken for granted in such an era, but newer and more original is the presentation of a kind of gray-clay grayish-tan that suggests both old statuary or sepia etchings associated with Chinese art. It is very beautiful particularly as a background for brilliant color accents. This shade comes to light along with a number of "uncolored colors" that are being stressed for evening in the beige gamut, dipping into the deeper tans that suggest fawn, or ascending to the lighter skin tones represented by ivory or banana-meat.

Doesn't this give you an idea of what spring promises, and isn't it worth looking toward? In the meantime we are sure about gray and are also beginning to feel confident, not only that navy will run true to form, but that it is crowding black for that much discussed dinner suit. Why? Because men are taking up navy for their evening clothes, and we women are in hot pursuit of them, sartorially speaking, of course. This fashion for navy is pronounced, even for "conventional" evening dress, by which is meant the man-inspired, though dressmaker-made, variety.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "Please answer this question. When a boy and girl start to dance, which one, the boy or girl, is supposed to start the conversation?—D. Y. O."

ANSWER: Either one may speak to the other, to comment briefly on the music or a given new step, as the spirit moves him. However, do not be alarmed so long as you are enjoying a dance, if neither you nor your partner has anything to say. The chance is that he also likes dancing with you, in which case he most likely will ask you to dance with him again. It is not considered good form to carry on a continuous conversation while dancing or to hum with the music.

A Daily Menu Not Complete Without Salad

By JUDITH WILSON

HOMEMAKERS often feel pretty salads take so much time to prepare they can serve them only on "special occasions." Meals become monotonous and unappetizing without attractive salads to give them a lift, so you should make a special effort to serve them at least once daily.

Apples and bananas, canned fruits and fish, the winter vegetables like beets, carrots, cabbage, potatoes and all of the greens available in your market offer a wide range of salad possibilities. Garnish them with stuffed olives, sliced or stuffed halves of hard-cooked eggs, colorful strips of pimiento or pickle relish.

Salad dressings add a pert touch to winter salads. Interestingly flavored French dressings for vegetable and green salads, mayonnaise for meat and fish salads, and a special mayonnaise or cooked dressing for jellied and plain fruit salads enhance their appetite appeal.

Below are recipes for salads and an interesting dressing for your fruit combinations.

DINNERS
Pork Goulash with Dumplings
Buttered String Beans
Crisp Rolls
Jellied Apple-Carrot Salad
Individual Caramel Icebox Cakes
Coffee

Chilled Tomato Juice
Minute Steaks
French Fried Potatoes
Pear-Maraschino Salad
Date Puffs—Lemon Sauce
Tea

Magic Mayonnaise

Put the following ingredients into a pint fruit jar and shake vigorously for 2 minutes: 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1/4 cup salad oil, 2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1 unbeaten egg yolk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard and a few grains of cayenne. The mixture will blend perfectly on shaking and you will have a smooth, creamy mayonnaise that is surprisingly good.

Apple-Carrot Salad

Prepare 1 package of lemon-flavored gelatin according to the directions on the package. Place in the refrigerator to chill. When the mixture begins to thicken, add 1 cup raw carrot, finely shredded and 1 cup finely shredded apple. Mix well and put in individual molds to set. When firm unmold on lettuce or watercress and serve with mayonnaise.

Fruit Salad Ring

Put 1/4 cup cold water in a bowl, sprinkle with 2 tablespoons unsweetened gelatin and soak until the water is absorbed. Heat 2 cups grapejuice to the boiling point and pour over the softened gelatin. Stir until dissolved and cool until thick. Arrange the following fruits in a ring mold: 1 cup diced canned pears, 1/2 cup grapes, peeled and cut into halves and 1/2 cup drained orange sections. Pour over the gelatin and chill until firm. Unmold on a plate garnished with watercress or lettuce. Fill the center of the ring with 1 cup cream cheese to which has been added 1/4 cup chopped maraschino cherries, 1/2 cup toasted chopped almonds and enough cream to make a fluffy mixture. Pass mayonnaise.

Tomato Dressing

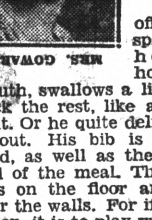
Combine 1/4 cup mayonnaise, 1/4 cup thick tomato soup, 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/4 teaspoon grated onion, 2 teaspoons salad oil, 1/2 teaspoon finely chopped parsley and 1 teaspoon sharp vinegar. Shake well and serve with the baked bean salad.

Your Child You and

Babied Child Clings to Infantile Habits

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

WHEN two-year-old Arthur is placed in his high chair at meal time he appreciates the fact he is in the limelight and never fails to take advantage of the situation. He has an amazing repertoire of tricks. He keeps busy performing every minute, from the time food is set before him until he is lifted out of the chair.



MRS. GOWARD

When mother offers him a spoonful of rice, he takes it, holds it in his mouth, swallows a little and gives back the rest, like a drooling infant. Or he quite deliberately spits it out. His bib is covered with food, as well as the tray, by the end of the meal. There are spatters on the floor and sometimes over the walls. For if he is given a spoon, it is to play with. And since he is being fed, he amuses himself by hammering away. Or for the sake of variety, he may begin making noises with or without food in his mouth. He is a most versatile young man.

That Arthur is spoiled goes without saying. He is spoiled by being treated like a baby. And taking his cue from mother, he acts like one. Being more than twice as old as the average baby, and therefore more than twice as strong and intelligent, he is able to give a vigorous performance. He is being a baby with a vengeance. For no child wants to remain a baby forever. He wants to grow up and acquire skills and be applauded for them. And if he cannot get attention that way he will strive to get it the way he can. As witness Arthur.

By this time Arthur should be feeding himself, if not altogether, then with a little help from his mother. A child cannot learn to feed himself with mother doing it for him all the time. Arthur's education should have started when he first evinced interest in handling a spoon or cup. At that time he should have been encouraged to learn how to feed himself. Psychologically, he was ready for learning. In addition to allowing Arthur to feed himself now, it might be wise to abandon the high chair and seat him at a nicely laid table, like a grown-up.

MODERN WOMEN

Sweet Sixteen May Be Time for Romance, But Only in the Mind

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

WHEN a girl of sixteen tells me she can "no longer care," or that "life is over," or indulges in any such histrionics I think I can be forgiven, even in time by the girl, for considering such statements exaggerated.

I know Juliet was only fourteen when she died for love, but all the circumstances, plus Mr. William Shakespeare's poetic frenzy, conspired against her. She had to die in order to justify her creation. It was all very lovely and tragically sad. But no healthy, normal girl born in this day and age wants to emulate Juliet. She doesn't want to die, but to live. She has moments when her sense of drama is stronger than her common sense, but, believe me, even at such moments were she put to the test and handed a phial or a dagger, she would make a hasty exit. She would enjoy being placed on the spot, and would, I am sure, very sensibly find a way out.

MRS. MARTIN

At sixteen one enjoys being broken-hearted. At twenty-six a badly damaged heart is camouflaged; it isn't considered any asset. One has by that time, if ever, developed some sense of humor. That's a help in bearing up under any of life's blows, even one directed straight to the heart. At sixteen a sense of humor is bound to be under-developed, so it's asking a lot of any girl to believe the day will come when she can laugh at what she once considered a great and overpowering love.

She may even be able to laugh at the man who succeeded, perhaps without his knowledge, in capturing her imagination sufficiently for her to fancy herself in love with him — instead of with love and the general idea of love.

The Girl's Problem

"Dear Mrs. Martin: I have a problem that I would like you to solve for me. I am a girl of sixteen, with coal-black hair and blue eyes. He is about twenty-one, with the same color hair, only straight, and his eyes are brown. I've never had the chance to have a real date with him.

"He doesn't think I care anything about him, only just a friend, but I do. I am always teasing him. Should I not be around him much? Or should I go on pretending to be friendly? Answer and tell just what you think, not what you think would not hurt my feelings, because they have been hurt so much I don't care. Tell me just how to act.

"Another Fool."

Well, litle girl, you asked for it, so here it is. You are a fool to take your preference for this young man so seriously and for believing that at sixteen you have been so hurt you "don't care." Just what the color of your hair and eyes, and his, have to do with your problem is something I can't quite figure out, unless you mean to indicate he is your ideal type.

Normal Romancing

This is what I really think: you are romancing, as is usual for any normal girl of your age. I think you are not in love with this young man, but with love itself, and that you had better not confuse the two.

What pretense need there be about your friendship for him? You most certainly must feel kindly toward him—even though you love him—and so my advice is, don't pretend friendship, but be a friend and thank your lucky stars the young man accepts you as such and has not misinterpreted your teasing, which, by the way, I suggest you discontinue. It's a dangerous practice. Men don't like to be teased.

Avoid being self-conscious and enjoy whatever friendship comes your way with this and any other young man. Leave something to fate, for at sixteen you are bound to believe in it. And try to remember the law of attraction usually works both ways, which should give you hope that in time this young man will become conscious of you, in which case what you call a real date will come to pass.

A young man of twenty-one knows a great deal more of the world than a girl of sixteen possibly could. His standards are different from hers and his interests are very different, too. He should be thinking of getting on in the world, and if he is a sensible sort he will be trying to put romantically inclined young girls out of his mind; they are too distracting.

Don't rush at life so avidly. You have long years ahead of you in which really to enjoy it. Sixteen cannot really appreciate love, so why not wait as patiently as you can for it to come naturally? It's the sort of thing that cannot be forced.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

CHOCOLATE SPONGE ROLL: 6 tablespoons sifted cake flour, 1/2 teaspoon double-acting baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 3/4 cup sifted sugar, 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, 1 cup cream, whipped and sweetened.

Sift flour, add baking powder and salt, sift together. Fold in flour gradually. Then beat in chocolate. Turn into 15x10-inch pan which has been greased, lined with paper to within 1/2 inch of edge, and again greased. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 13 minutes, or until done. Quickly cut off crisp edges of cake and turn out on cloth covered with powdered sugar. Remove paper. Wrap in cloth and cool on rack. When cold, spread with whipped cream. Roll as for jelly roll.

Aged Man Takes Life To Put An End To Suffering

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 15—UP—Tragedy today ended a romance between two aged inmates of the Altenheim, home for elderly Germans.

Mrs. Malvina Zufal entered the room of her husband, Frederick, 80, whom she met and married five years ago, to find the body of the man hanging from the door.

A note in the room read:

"I am very sorry to have to do this to you. . . , but I cannot stand longer the pain. It will never get better, so I make an end this way. I am sorry you left me in my worry but I love you with all my heart."

Attaches of the home said they believed Zufal's reference to "left me in my worry" referred to the fact Mrs. Zufal recently took a separate but adjoining room to that of her husband.

TAHOE CITY, Feb. 15.—Influenza drove Mary Astor, screen actress from a wintry film location to a Reno hospital last night and combined with an approaching storm to break up a motion picture camp of 150 persons in the High Sierras.

Dr. S. K. Morrison, Reno physician, reported Miss Astor's condition was not serious but said it would be unwise for her to return with the 150 other members of the Columbia Company to Hollywood after they decided to postpone work at Brockway, near here, on a Winter sports comedy, "Bless Their Heart."

Director Elliott Nugent and 11 others afflicted decided to accompany the group 15 miles by automobile to Truckee, where they made connection last night with a Los Angeles-bound train.

Los Angeles Hit By Flu Epidemic

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15.—UP—A mild type of influenza, reaching near-epidemic proportions, depleted school attendance in the Los Angeles area and caused a quarantine of Juvenile Hall, police detention home for minors.

More than 100 children and 13 staff members were reported bedridden today at the institution, constituting almost one-third of its total personnel.

Police were ordered to avoid making detentions there.

Because of the spread of the disease, Whittier high school, Antelope Valley high school and Norwalk grammar school were closed. At Ventura it was decided to keep schools closed for another week.

Superintendent Frank A. Boutle reported 106 teachers ill.

Day bombers will be delayed until February 24 as a result of the illness of Referee A. E. Shaw. Shaw, stricken by influenza, was confined to his home in Berkeley. The hearings, repeatedly delayed, had been called to resume Monday.

Things That Never Happen

Olahudka, it made seriousness of the border situation apparent. Japan's growing concern over the frontier incidents was emphasized by dispatches from Moscow concerning the suggestion made by Tamekichi Onta, Japanese ambassador to Russia, that a commission be named to investigate the border difficulties.

The fact that this new suggestion was Japanese in origin is noteworthy in that, hitherto, Japan has maintained such commissions were useless until the border lines are delimited clearly. The Russians, however, have shown a tendency to force the issue by arms. Russia has held that the frontier lines already are definite and a commission should seek to untangle the causes of the frequent clashes.

CLOSE CONSULATES

Russia's decisions yesterday and today to close up its consulates at Mukden and Suifenho, opposite Pogranitchnaya, was received here with interest. Russia has had six consulates in Manchukuo while Manchuokuo only has two in Asiatic Russia. Observers believed that Russia preferred to abandon some of its consular posts rather than give Japan the opportunity of demanding more consulates in its territory, and thus exposing the secrecy which has surrounded the extent of the Soviet army in Asia.

Border Closed

DESPITE CRITICISM from neighboring State, Los Angeles city police shut the Southern California border against vagrants. In one day 122 itinerants were rounded up and ordered to leave the city at once or spend 10 days in jail. Here are some who were caught in the round-up as police inspected what little personal property they possessed.

Fathers, Sons Are Urged To Get Acquainted

Calling on fathers and sons to become "better acquainted" with each other as a basis for mutual understanding, Victor Lindblad, Boy Scout executive of the Berkeley - Contra Costa county council, addressed 175 fathers and sons at a Scout banquet Friday night at Memorial hall which climaxed annual Boy Scout week.

Lindblad said that changing times and increased leisure time for boys had intensified the problem of growing youth and advised fathers to spend as much time as possible with their sons.

Joseph H. Miller, division commissioner, was master of ceremonies and chairman. Other speakers were Dr. A. B. Hinkley, city councilman and chairman of the scout executive board, who gave the address of welcome; Scout Russell Leist who proposed a toast to the dads; Thomas G. Gray, chairman of court of honor, who answered on behalf of the fathers; Rev. J. Irving Rhoades and Rev. J. Chester White.

Music was furnished by the Lions' club orchestra. The meal was prepared and served by the ladies of Honor Auxiliary, V. F. W.

according to a very interesting article appearing in the "clip sheet" of the University of California.

Much of the history of Contra Costa county and other trans-bay counties is being revealed by the study of adobe bricks, according to Professor W. G. Hendry, assistant professor of agronomy in the University of California. The existence of many early California flowers, fruits, field crops, weeds and even plant diseases has thus been determined.

A method of dating the origin of many obscure adobe buildings by this means, in much the same manner that geological strata are dated by means of the fossils they contain, is now being evolved. During the past 150 years, California has been the unwilling recipient of hundreds of alien weeds, many of which now dominate the countryside, and the dates of their arrival are being fixed by the botanical examination of the adobe buildings.

The study includes the Spanish Missions and rancho buildings erected from 1770 to 1824, the Mexican rancho buildings erected from about 1830 to 1848, and some American period adobes erected during the fifties and sixties. About 100 of such buildings have been discovered in the nine counties which border on San Francisco Bay, and they are yielding up a wealth of historic lore.

the Oregon border south almost to Mexico were under water. Railroad transportation was hampered by washouts and landslides. Communication companies reported poles washed out. The Oakland fire alarm system was out of commission for a few hours during the storm period.

FARMERS HAIL MOISTURE

Only the farmers of the San Joaquin, Sacramento and other agricultural valleys appeared to welcome the almost unprecedented downpour which began Monday when a semi-tropical storm, which brought lightning and hail-tones as well as rain and snow, blew in from the Pacific. The farmers saw prospects of increased yields of spring and summer crops from the rain which soaked deeply into their fields.

California's wettest spot in the 24 hours ended at noon today was Mt. Wilson near Pasadena, where 2.34 inches of rain were registered. San Diego, which largely escaped the earlier fall, had 1.5 inches; Los Angeles 1.10, Oakland .41, and San Francisco .60. Norden and Salt Soda Springs in the Sierras, center of winter sports activities, reported more than four feet of new snow. The snow depth at Norden was 150 inches.

INFLUENZA SPREADS

Several deaths through automobile accidents were attributed to storm conditions. Influenza, at epidemic stage in Northern California since Feb. 1, spread rapidly. A Hollywood motion picture company on location in the Sierras was forced to abandon its work and return south because of illness and the snow. The China Clipper of Pan American Airways' transpacific flying fleet was held at Alameda awaiting cessation of head winds. The gales turned the plane back Friday after it had flown almost halfway to Hawaii.

Sterilization Case To Proceed

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 15.—UP—August Fourtner, assistant San Francisco co-district attorney, said today he would proceed with prosecution of the Cooper Hewitt sterilization mayhem charges Monday whether or not Mrs. Maryon McCarter, internationally known as a hostess and a five-times bride, was on hand.

Mrs. McCarter was reported ill in the East. She also was said to be preparing to fight extradition on the charges which followed an operation which deprived her 21 year old daughter, Ann of any opportunity of bearing children.

SUBSTITUTE FOR TRIPLE A ADOPTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 — UP — The Administration farm relief bill using soil conservation as a means of controlling production and making benefit payments to farmers was passed late today by the Senate.

The measure now goes to the house where adoption is assured.

The vote was 56 to 20.

Senate passage came after 12 days of debate, during which Republican senators, supported by several from Democratic ranks, fought the measure on the ground that it was unconstitutional and a "mere political gesture."

Debate was protracted by injection of controversy over attempts to curb the power of the Supreme Court to invalidate laws passed by Congress. It was the Supreme Courts' action in declaring the agricultural adjustment act unconstitutional which necessitated the writing of a new farm program.

The measure as finally passed was virtually unchanged from the original draft proposed by Senator John H. Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, and Chairman Marvin Jones of the House agriculture committee. Its sponsors maintained that it met the requirements of the Supreme Court decision outlawing the AAA.

The Bankhead-Jones bill differs mainly from the AAA in that it does not provide for contracts with farmers. It promises benefit payments to farmers who make proper showing that they have helped to remedy the agricultural situation by compliance with government requirements on soil conservation.

Filming Of Lewis Novel Is Stopped

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—UP — Sinclair Lewis, novelist said tonight that he had been informed his novel "It Can Happen Here," had been barred from motion pictures on the ground it might arouse domestic and international difficulties.

The author said he understood that Will Hays, movie czar, has ordered cessation of work. It is said the work of filming the novel which was a fictional description of the United States under a dictator, had already begun.

Lewis said the reported action "raises an extremely critical and important question.

Press Restriction Means Disaster News Men Told

BERKELEY, Feb. 15.—Any attempt to curtail the freedom of the press or hamper the academic freedom of teaching is an "invitation to disaster."

This was the message delivered before a hundred Northern California newspapermen and editors today by President Robert Gordon Sproul, of the University of California.

The newspapermen were here as guests of the University alumni association. They convened at noon at the faculty club, on the campus, and later participated in a sight-seeing tour, viewing Giannini Hall, the Life Science building, and the radiation laboratory.

"The freedom of the press is almost as dear to us as it is to you," Dr. Sproul told the visitors, "for freedom of the press and academic liberty are blood kin.

"If you print the facts, we have no quarrel with you. And if our professors spread the truth, you should have no quarrel with them, however disappointing that truth may be to your dearest prejudices.

"Censorship of the press or newspaper profession should be equally unthinkable in the United States of America as in other countries.

"If we are to serve mankind the freedom of the press and the academic teaching at the University of California must be defended as our very life blood," he concluded.

Royalist Editor Of France Is Indicted

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Charles Maurras, editor of the Royalist newspaper, L'Action Francaise, was indicted today for complicity in incitement to murder through alleged inflammatory editorials in the Royalist party organ.

His indictment followed an investigation of newspaper articles demanded by Socialists, after their party leader, Deputy Leon Blum, was beaten by young Royalists Thursday.

Similar charges were preferred against Joseph Delest, managing editor of the newspaper.

COUNTERFEIT IS SMUGGLED BY CIVILIAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—UP—The United States secret service today completed solution of one of its most puzzling cases by finding the man who smuggled from San Quentin prison the $10 prison-made counterfeit bills circulated in Northern California shortly after the Christmas holidays.

The spurious notes were carried from behind the dim gray walls where California keeps more than 5000 convicts to the world outside by a civilian," an unwitting dupe," Thomas B. Foster, head of the western detail of the secret service, announced.

The civilian, whose name was not revealed, was not the only dupe of the convict counterfeiters. The sovereign State of California also was duped, for the paper on which the notes were made, the plates from which they were printed, and the inks used in the process were provided by the State.

The picture still lacked one detail—the method by which the money was smuggled from the prison.

Foster filled that lack today by his own announcement that a civilian admitted taking out the stuff but not knowing what it was until the disclosures of this week. He will appear as a witness for the government in the trials that will follow.

Friends Fear For Safety Of San Jose Men

SAN JOSE, Feb. 15—UP—Friends here expressed concern today for the safety of Fred Estes, prominent San Jose attorney, and Robert Beverson, real estate man, who have been trapped in a cabin back of Mount Hamilton since Monday.

The Lick observatory has reported the men unable to leave their cabin because of the swollen waters of Bonito creek, which is now a raging torrent eight feet deep.

A rescue party would have to cross the swollen stream several times to reach the cabin.

Fred Hoback, a friend of the two men, said today that if the men are not reported safe by Monday, an airplane will be sent to drop food to them.
